Dear Paul and Judy,

I'm writing to let you know of a change happening in my piano teaching schedule, starting in the fall. I have been offered a partnership in a piano studio at the Dairy Center for the Arts, at 2590 Walnut Street, Boulder, CO. With the new schedule and location I am no longer going to be able to drive down to Denver for lessons. I realize that Boulder requires some travel, but I would like to invite all Denver students to come to the Dairy Center for lessons, and I would prioritize times for you. To help with the distance, maybe there can be alternating carpooling with other families. My normal teaching days will be on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, but I can check to see if there are any weekend times available at the new studio. As a reminder, I will be out of town Aug. 7 - Sept. 13 and will resume teaching on Sept. 14. Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

All my best,

Jerod Tate
